LISTENING SKILLS -VI

Mr. Mtokambali had a wife and two children. His first born was nine years old, while the second born was six years old. They were poor. They lived in a mud-walled and grass-thatched house. They normally used firewood or charcoal as their source of energy for cooking. Whenever they wanted to cook anything, they lighted charcoal and firewood using kerosene. The kerosene was kept in a jerry can in the kitchen.

One day, Mr. Mtokambali and his wife went to the farm. Before going to the farm, his wife prepared food for the children. Then she told the children to care of the house and prohibited them from touching the matchbox or making a fire in the kitchen. She said, “nowadays there are many thieves, so don’t play far from our home.” They then, went to the farm and returned later on that day.
